You’re In.

WELCOME TO THE HOUSE.

MOREHOUSE COLLEGE
YOUR DESTINY AWAITS.

Martin Luther King Jr. ’48
Nobel Peace Prize Winner

Raphael Warnock ’91
United States Senator

Samuel L. Jackson ’72
Blockbuster Movie Actor

Spike Lee ’79
Academy Award-Winning Director and Producer

Jeh Johnson ’79
Former U.S. Secretary of Homeland Security

Maynard Jackson ’56
First Black Mayor of Atlanta, GA

John David Washington ’06
Golden Globe-Nominated Star of BlacKkKlansman, Tenet, and Ballers

Theodore Colbert ’95
CEO of Boeing Global Services

Dr. David Satcher ’63
Former U.S. Surgeon General
A Morehouse Man is special and unique in the world.

We have carefully and thoroughly reviewed the work ethic, character, capacity for excellence, and potential for achievement you have shown and are ready to welcome you into the most unique brotherhood in the world — men of color who receive a comprehensive liberal arts collegiate education specifically designed to prepare them for lives of leadership, service, innovation, and consequence. It is no accident that so many of our students and graduates have literally changed the world through courage and competence in their chosen fields of endeavor. They are CEOs, senators, mayors, scientists, judges, inventors, tech entrepreneurs, researchers, engineers, artists, inventors, and specialists in every field. As a member of the Morehouse brotherhood and part of the newest chapter in our legacy, creating societal, commercial, and scientific change will not simply be your aspiration. It will be your expectation.

There is only one college in America solely dedicated to educating, empowering, and elevating men of color. Here, you won’t be merely accepted. You will be celebrated for your brilliance and challenged to leverage every ounce of your talent. You won’t have to seek out fellow students who can relate to your life experiences. They will surround you — as your roommates, classmates, lab partners, teammates, and fellow student leaders. You won’t have to join a special program to find mentors. They will be your professors, academic advisors, residence house leaders, deans, and club leaders. In other words, Morehouse has spent more than a century and a half creating a campus purposefully designed to embrace, prepare, enable, and support you as you pursue your destiny.

At Morehouse, you will discover relationships with your brothers and other young men and women in the Atlanta University Center which will become your lifelong friendships, business partnerships, creative collaborations, and career network. You will discover common interests with world-renowned faculty members which will stimulate your intellectual curiosity, cultivate your ingenuity, and accelerate your professional development. But most important, you will discover the upper limits of your genius, push the boundaries of your determination and focus, expand your cultural horizons, test your values, and recognize the things in life that are truly most important to you. You will discover yourself.

There is a greatness that is meant for you and only you — and we are here to help you seek it. If you are ready to step into your future, we are ready to help you chart your course.

Welcome to the House.

Sincerely,
David A. Thomas, Ph.D.
President
Let’s make it happen.

You’ve been accepted into the only college in the country built for men of color, and now it’s time to secure your seat in the incoming class. You're going to live, learn, and socialize on the historic Morehouse campus, and it’s time to put some things in place as you start this new chapter of your life.

• Get your new credentials.
You now have special access to information that is shared within the Morehouse community. Make sure that you have the credentials you need to log onto the online portals which will keep you up to date.

• Pay your deposit.
Pay your deposit lets us know that you are committed to coming to Morehouse. Your deposit is a small portion of the tuition and fees associated with your education as you become an official college student.

• Understand your financial options.
There are lots of options to facilitate the investment you are making in your education. You may receive scholarships, grants, or loans, or may choose to provide funds directly. Work with our financial aid advisors to determine the best options for you and your family.

• Reserve your living space.
Most new students are required to live on campus so you don’t have to worry about meals and transportation and can fully participate in campus life. You’ll want to make sure that you secure your place into a residence house where you will thrive.

• Register for classes.
Once classes are open for the semester in which you will begin, take care to sign-up for courses which will help you develop fundamental skills in the area in which you plan to major and which will challenge you intellectually.

• Submit your documents.
Though you’ve applied and have been accepted, you still need to submit some documentation before you arrive on campus, such as proof of vaccination and other information.

• Stay informed.
Make sure that you don’t miss deadlines, workshops, and other admissions guidance by checking your email and logging into your portal frequently.
Take your place in the Atlanta University Center.

As a Morehouse student, you’ll call one of the most historic campuses in the world your home. It’s where U.S. presidents like Barack Obama and Joseph Biden have come to share their ideas, where human rights campaigns like the Atlanta Student Movement have their roots, where lions of leadership like Martin Luther King Jr. and Julian Bond slept and studied, and where countless icons of culture, business, science and technology, education, public policy, and civil rights from all over the world have paraded to dialogue with our students and faculty. And believe it or not, it gets better.

Morehouse is connected to other iconic institutions in the Atlanta University Center (AUC), including Spelman College, Clark Atlanta University, and Morehouse School of Medicine. As part of one of the largest and most vibrant historically Black college neighborhoods, you’ll share a state-of-the-art library, classes, social experiences, career opportunities, professional development opportunities, and intellectual discussions with other students headed in your same life direction. Programs like the AUC Symphony Orchestra, the AUC Dual-Degree Engineering Program, AUC Art History + Curatorial Studies Collective, and AUC MakeWay (an engineering lab collaborative) offer opportunities for students at each institution to creatively engage with one another and develop life-changing leadership, professional, and service skills. Students at each AUC institution have special access to each other’s campuses and can benefit from the resources, faculty, clubs and organizations, research opportunities, and events at other colleges.

In fact, during your first weeks on campus, you’ll be paired with a Spelman sister for camaraderie and support, a decades-old tradition. Students at the two institutions take many classes together on both campuses and engage in collaborative leadership and service programs like the Bonner Scholars Program. Spelman students are part of the Morehouse College “House of Funk” Marching Band as both instrumentalists and dancers and are cheerleaders for the Maroon Tiger sports teams. The joint concerts featuring the Morehouse College Glee Club and Spelman College Concert Choir are international attractions and have been featured on national and statewide television, including a prime-time appearance on the #1 network television program. Morehouse and Spelman recently announced the joint formation of the Center for Black Entrepreneurship, which will prepare students from both institutions to be successful business owners and innovators.

There has never been — and will never be — a more legendary place for young men and women of color to begin their adulthood with like-minded students. It is an energy like no other, and you’re ready to take your place.
A new world is ready for you.

You’ll study with professors who are thought leaders, researchers, authors, and experts respected around the world, but that is just part of the world you are walking into. You can specialize in a field you are passionate about among dozens of academic majors and participate in dozens more clubs and organizations in which you can grow your skills, impact your campus and local communities, learn from experienced advisors, and engage with fellow student leaders. You can study abroad, secure an internship, or travel with a sports team, the band, or the world-famous Morehouse Glee Club. It’s time you viewed the world from a new perspective.

Here to help.

If you have any questions or comments about your next steps, you can contact an admissions counselor:

Morehouse College
Office of Admissions
830 Westview Drive, S.W.
Atlanta, GA 30314
Email: admissions@morehouse.edu
Phone: (404) 215-2618
“Intelligence plus character — that is the goal of true education.”

- Martin Luther King Jr.
writing for the Morehouse College Maroon Tiger newspaper