

BIOGRAPHY

KIMBERLEY MARSHALL, PH.D. VICE PRESIDENT AND CHIEF INFORMATION OFFICER

Dr. Kimberley Marshall, vice president and chief information officer for Morehouse College, is an experienced leader and expert in multiple sectors of the information technology field. She has a background in higher education and over 20 years' experience as both an instructor and as an administrator at six different colleges and universities in the southeastern United States.

Dr. Marshall is noted for her work leading pivotal strategic initiatives and for her success integrating technology platforms by leveraging diverse design and development theories. Her expertise includes oversight of information technology planning; implementation of policies and programming to improve network infrastructures; and managing network security and informational systems.

In just a few years at Morehouse, Dr. Marshall has saved the college nearly $1 million by renegotiating preexisting contracts and has generated additional cost reductions by migrating the school to a virtualized server environment. She has also dramatically increased network uptime from 60% to 99.9%.

Dr. Marshall is a proud alumna of Mississippi State University, where she completed all of her undergraduate studies and post-graduate work and earned her Bachelor of Arts in psychology, a Master of Science in instructional technology education, and a Ph.D. in instructional technology education with work in community college leadership.

Dr. Marshall is a member of professional organizations including the Associated Colleges of the South (ACS) and the Consortium of Liberal Arts Colleges (CLAC-CIOS). She is a former member of InfraGard and Leadership Huntsville/Madison County Alumni, Class 31, as well as a former board member of the Alabama Supercomputer Authority and the former treasurer and a former board member of the Women's Business Center of North Alabama. She is also a member of Delta Sigma Theta, Incorporated.
